

Justice in Time

After the 228 Incident broke out, Tang Dezhong saved many Tainan people and college students from suffering in order to protect the elites in Tainan.

On March 12, Tang Dezhong was chained behind his back and hanged for an entire night. After being tortured, his wrists were tied behind his back with a wooden sign with his name on his back. Park shooting. As he was about to be executed, he still looked calm and smiled at the surrounding citizens. The soldiers who executed the execution shouted "Kneel down!" But Mr. Tang stood still, shouting "Long live Taiwanese" in Japanese, and then went to justice. The bullet pierced through Tang's nose and forehead, and he was still proud and full of anger, before falling down after a while, and died in 1947.

With the changing times, Tang Dezhong's death anniversary has been designated as "Justice and Courage Memorial Day", and the Minsheng Green Park at the execution site has been changed to

"Tang Dezhong Memorial Park".
