and Future : 2020 vs. 2030

Although industrial development has brought modern people a prosperous life, it has also caused the destruction of nature.

Only when humans begin to pay attention to ecological conservation and development of green energy can we have a clean and comfortable living environment

Image 2020, factories are lined up with exhaust gas and rivers are discharged with waste water and garbage.

In order to develop the economy, human beings do not hesitate to create pollution, abuse resources, and harm nature

Image 2030, humans generally use green energy to replace other power generation methods, the air is gradually becoming fresher, and humans and animals live in peace in nature.
