

My theme is "Today's house compare to ten years after." People nowadays often busy in the work, so they spend few time accompany their childhood.

In the future. in order to save commuting time or spend more time with family, people often use the device of projection the human body to hold a meeting.

Most of the houses in the future green building and there are for solar panels on it. The solar panels in the future can change the position due to the angle of the sun. The most special is that it can generate electricity in rain day. It's use the impact force of the water drops to generate electricity.
