

- Nowadays people can take photo by using camera or smartphone to save the images they saw, but what if we back in 180 years ago how did people having photos without any photographic equipment, the only way they have is to draw by pen with their naked eyes, we call it “The Human Camera”, saving the image by either painting or sketching and present it on paper, currently some people still using this technique to show their artwork, it may not accurate than the photography but that is what the charms are, it can let us feel the side of the beauty while drawing the picture and build our mental attitude.